Promotion campaign helped increase visibility and conversion rate.

Order volume improved during the active promotion period.

Turn backend screenshots into a client-ready growth story

The report reframes raw Seller Center views into clear business insights for ecommerce decision-making.

This structure makes the screenshots feel like evidence, not just screenshots.

Order screenshots preserved, reorganized, and made easy to compare

Original TikTok Shop order views are retained as proof points, with clearer date-range labels and order count highlights.

Order volume trend

Note: April–Early May is not a full-month comparison, so it is shown as a partial period rather than a decline.

Promotional tools created a measurable performance layer

The new screenshots are integrated as campaign evidence beside the monthly order analytics.

What this communicates to a client

- Promotion activity can create demand, but order operations still need clean monitoring.
- Visible tabs and order rows show unpaid, in-transit, completed, and canceled statuses.
- Reporting gives the seller a fast way to review customer experience risks.
